

MASTT “Seedy Sundays”

Marsden and Slaithwaite transition towns.

4 workshops to help everyone, from beginner to expert, grow their own vegetables

28 Feb. Seed Swap at the Parochial Hall, Marsden, 11.00 -1.00

MASTT’s annual swap of all things seedy and a great intro to our season of “growing events” Bring seeds or seedlings to swap with others and multiply what you’ll be growing in 2010. Also seed potatoes and onions available.

There will also be a bulk order for seeds and materials – details on the day. Local growers will be on hand to give advice and encouragement over a cup of tea – a perfect start to your growing year!

Seedy Sundays - Paddock Farm, 10-12

Park Gate Road, Marsden. Follow road out from Duncan's barbers!

Particularly suitable for new and amateur growers. Seasoned growers join us in the last half hour of each session for a chat and a cup of coffee Bring seeds and plants to swap.

28th March

First of the 3 hands on gardening sessions:. Planting and bringing on seeds, getting potatoes started, designing beds, rotations and planting systems - from window box to large garden! Pick up any bulk orders you have placed.

9th May

Planting beans, leeks, tomatoes, peas and salad crops and getting the best out of a greenhouse. Bringing on potatoes and organic slug control.

13th June

Check on our now well growing crops and discuss their maintenance, how to construct structures for climbers (using local cut hazel and willow) mulching and watering systems, and look forward to the sowing of seed for winter cropping!

Orchard

MASTT are developing an orchard for all the community. We are now at the planting stage. Anyone who would like to help or be involved please email info@MASTT.co.uk

MASTT is community-led movement active in Marsden and Slaithwaite since 2007. Open to everyone, it brings people together to discuss, plan and show how to respond positively to climate change, resource depletion and other global uncertainties. Rather than worrying and feeling guilty, MASTT is doing something now to build community, resilience and a sense of wellbeing, and to make Marsden and Slaithwaite great places to live and work.

MASTT meets on the last Monday of every month “Collective Genius”
Join us for a casual get together at The New Inn, Marsden 8—10PM
